FHS Handbook

2026 – 2029

1 FOREWORD

1.1 Welcome

A warm welcome to your studies with the Faculties of English and Modern Languages at Oxford. We are very proud of what we can offer you through your course. Our strength lies in the range of material we cover and the individual attention we can give you to help you find your way. We have more tutors and students than any other Faculty of English or Modern Languages in the UK and regularly come first in University rankings for our subject.

We are by far the largest English Department in the UK and we have a very distinguished research record. The Faculty was ranked first in The Guardian's 2026 league table of English departments in the UK and took the top spot in the QS World University rankings for English Language and Literature for 9 consecutive years from 2016 to 2025. Our teaching has been graded 'Excellent' in every Quality Assurance review. Similarly, the faculty of Medieval and Modern Languages has been ranked first in the Guardian's 2027 league table and the most recent QS world university rankings for Modern Languages.

We aim to spark your interest and develop your talents to make you the best critics you can be. Your studies here will be stimulating, testing, challenging, and fun, in equal measure. Oxford has extraordinary resources for the study of literature and culture in English and European languages; it has outstanding libraries and museums and collections, both famous and little-known; a host of entertainment venues to expand your cultural horizons; beautiful and inspiring buildings; and lovely countryside within reach. There are countless opportunities to learn at Oxford and lots of willing brilliant minds to guide you through them. Do not be afraid to seize every chance and to ask questions. We wish you all the best for your time here.

Professor Simon Horobin, Magdalen College, Chair of the English Faculty Board.

Dr Laura Lonsdale, Director of Undergraduate Studies, Modern Languages

2 COURSE INFORMATION

2.1 Overview

This handbook covers the Honour School of English and Modern Languages, the final three years of BA (Hons) English and Modern Languages award. Undergraduate awards are located at Levels 4, 5 and 6 of the Frameworks for Higher Education Qualifications. The Subject Benchmark Statements for English and for Languages, Cultures and Societies can be found at <https://www.qaa.ac.uk/en/quality-code/subject-benchmark-statements>

This handbook contains essential information about the Faculties and the course, but further useful information is available via the English Faculty and Modern Languages pages for undergraduates, at: <https://canvas.ox.ac.uk/courses/28028>, and <https://canvas.ox.ac.uk/courses/20010>.

In particular, you should consult the Modern Languages Undergraduate Course Handbook and FHS handbooks for individual languages for the detailed information they provide. These are available online at: <https://canvas.ox.ac.uk/courses/20010>.

Where authors' dates span the period paper boundary, you should discuss with your tutor where their work more appropriately falls given your interests. In the examination, it is acceptable to discuss a cross-period author within either or both of the periods into which their work falls (as, for example, might be the case for the works of Milton). However, do not write substantially on the same text in more than one assessment and do not repeat material across any parts of the examination

If you have any issues with teaching or supervision please raise these as soon as possible so that they can be addressed promptly. Details of whom to contact are provided in section 4.6 of this handbook.

2.1.1 Note on Content

The course explores potentially challenging topics. Literature and the other materials we study sometimes portray extreme physical, emotional and psychological states; depict, question, and/or endorse racist, misogynist and prejudiced views or language; and can include graphic representations of inequality and violence (of all kinds). As a Faculty, we believe that one of the important roles of study in the humanities is to explore and challenge ideas that are shocking or uncomfortable, and to understand their origins, expression and influence. We also recognise that these texts will affect students differently depending on their particular backgrounds and experiences. If anything about the material troubles you, please contact your tutors or welfare supporters.

2.2 Educational Aims of the BA in English and Modern Languages

The programme aims to enable its students to

- i) Acquire a knowledge of a foreign culture with specific reference to its literature and language, characterised by range, depth and conceptual sophistication
- ii) Achieve a high level of competence in the spoken and written language they are studying, and to communicate effectively in formal and informal registers

- iii) Acquire some knowledge of the historical development of the expressive resources of the English language and the ways in which this relates to and impacts on the production of literary texts
- iv) Think critically and in an historicised manner about the complex relationship between literary texts and their social, political, cultural and other relevant contexts
- v) Develop the skill of independent thinking and writing, drawing on technical skills in literary and linguistic investigation, and on a sensitive understanding of foreign cultures in the past and in the present
- vi) Promote skills of relevance to further professional development of cultural, literary and linguistic understanding, and which are transferable to a wide range of contexts in the workplace and in later life
- vii) Engage and enhance their critical skills, imagination and creativity as an intrinsic part of an intense learning experience.

2.3 Intended learning outcomes

A	Knowledge and understanding of:	Related teaching/learning methods and strategies
1	How primary evidence is employed in literary-critical, linguistic and philological analysis and argument;	The detailed study of linguistic structures, literary texts, and films and other artefacts from a range of periods is essential to the course. Literary works are read in their original language, as is some of the associated critical writing. Close attention is paid in lectures, classes and tutorials to the texts' generic, cultural and linguistic specificity.
2	A broad range of literary and, where chosen, linguistics topics including literary theory, the history of literary criticism, and processes of literary production and dissemination	On the Modern Languages side, students may study broad topics in the literature of different periods of their choice, ranging from the medieval to the modern, and may also choose from a further wide range of courses more focussed on specific literary and linguistic topics. On the English side, the course allows students to read and analyse literature from a wide range of periods and genres and exposes them to a variety of theoretical and ideological approaches to literary and cultural history.
3	Relevant linguistic skills;	Students have a variety of language classes throughout their course, and also spend their third year abroad to develop their written and oral skills in the language(s) studied.

Assessment:

In terms of summative assessment, most aspects of the required knowledge and understanding are tested through timed examinations held during the course of the third and the twelfth terms of the programme, and by extended essays submitted in the tenth and eleventh terms. Within a range of Special Subjects studied, some options involve coursework. Oral language skills are tested in examinations in the final term of the course.

Formative assessment is provided in both weekly tutorials and practice examinations. Understanding is particularly assessed on a continuous formative basis through the weekly tutorial or seminar, and through language classes. Most colleges also have a regime of termly report reading that offers regular valuable feedback to the student.

B	Intellectual skills: the ability to	Teaching/learning methods and strategies
1	Read closely, exercise critical judgement and undertake sophisticated analysis;	There is emphasis throughout the programme on the skills relevant to the careful and critical reading and exegesis of primary texts. The ability to gather, sift, synthesise and interpret secondary material is also recognised as making a particular contribution to the development of sophisticated analytical skills.
2	Argue persuasively, using appropriate and accurate critical terminology;	Practical rhetorical skills are honed within the weekly tutorial context, and in the classes associated with some elements of the course. Student essays and presentations must display the ability to identify issues, to formulate arguments that are susceptible to demonstration, and to marshal evidence and analysis in a logical and coherent way.
3	Approach problems with creativity and imagination;	Developing the creative thinking and encouraging the exercise of disciplined imagination of all students is integral to the programme. These attributes are regarded as essential if students are to comprehend the values and expectations of present and past societies, and the literary cultures and languages studied.

4	Develop the exercise of independence of mind, and a readiness to challenge and criticise accepted opinion.	The study of a foreign culture develops an awareness of contrasts with our native culture. All our learning strategies are designed to inculcate independence of thought, most particularly the vigorous argument that we seek to encourage in our regular tutorials. On literary and linguistic or philological topics, students are expected to acquire familiarity with different and sometimes conflicting approaches and interpretations, and to develop their own views through critical engagement with the work of others. They will also have contact through tutorials and lectures, with post-holders at the forefront of new research whose own work is likely to challenge certain aspects of the status quo within their particular fields.

Assessment:

The formative assessment provided by weekly tutorials is critical to the development and monitoring of the intellectual skills set out here. Students receive weekly scrutiny of these skills through their presentation and defence of written essay material in front of an established academic and, usually, one or more of the student's peer group. In classes, presentations to a larger group of peers need to be thorough, professional, and critically and textually persuasive.

C	Practical skills: the ability to	Teaching/learning methods and strategies
1	Write well in a manner which can be adapted for a variety of audiences and contexts;	The continuous scrutiny of written work, whether produced for tutorials, language classes or examinations, aims to promote writing which is marked by well-structured and coherent argument, in a prose that is clear, appropriate and fluent.
2	Engage in oral discussion and argument with others, in a way that advances understanding of the problems at issue and the appropriate approaches and solutions to them;	The weekly tutorials and other classes or seminars provide ample opportunity to develop and refine high-level skills in oral presentation and discussion.
3	Ensure that a range of evidence and opinion can be brought to bear on a	Emphasis is placed on showing a familiarity with a variety of bibliographical resources and on demonstrating an ability to identify and problem, and to develop research skills to this end;	retrieve primary sources and secondary literature in English and other languages.

|---|--|--|
| 4 | Employ advanced language skills in oral and written contexts. | A range of language classes is provided throughout the undergraduate course. Conversation, discourse and comprehension classes with native speakers develop oral and aural skills in formal and informal contexts. Classes on the written language teach formal grammar and extend students' accuracy and knowledge of different registers through translation into and out of the language(s) studied, and through essay composition and other exercises. |
| 5 | The ability to access, manipulate and assess electronic data | Induction sessions in IT are supplemented by a range of opportunities to develop skills in this field. |

Assessment:

Formative assessment through the weekly tutorial, seminar presentations where appropriate, and language classes enables a continuous monitoring of the development of practical skills. Termly reports from tutors and language teachers identify both points of excellence and of concern, while more formal assessment through termly College-based examinations ('collections') provides opportunities to monitor and provide feedback on skills associated with timed written examinations.

- | | | |
|----------|---|---|
| D | Transferable skills: the ability to | Teaching/learning methods and strategies |
| 1 | Find information, organise and deploy it; | Information retrieval from printed materials, together with the regular use of IT (library catalogues etc.), is integral to all aspects of the programme. |
| 2 | Draw on such information to consider and analyse complex problems, in ways that are imaginative and sensitive to the norms and traditions of other cultures; | These are the skills at the heart of our programme. They are eminently transferable to contexts beyond the university and they foster cultural awareness. |

3	Work well independently, with a strong sense of self-direction, but with the ability to work constructively in co-operation with others;	The tutorial system is designed to promote independent research skills, while Faculty and College-based seminars for certain options encourage collaboration.
4	Structure and communicate ideas effectively in a variety of written and oral formats;	Fostering the ability to present ideas effectively and to respond constructively to the ideas of others is integral to the nature and construction of the programme.
5	Plan and organise the use of time effectively;	Students who are expected to produce up to four pieces of written work per week (tutorial essay plus language work) learn how to organise their time very efficiently.
6	Employ language skills at an advanced level.	Graduates of this programme will have received extensive language training and will normally have spent a year abroad in the relevant country, refining their language skills in a variety of practical contexts.

Assessment:

The transferable skills identified in (1)-(6) above are essential elements of this programme. As such they become the focus of much of the regular comment provided by tutors and language teachers in their weekly contacts with students, and in the various modes of formal feed-back provided to students throughout the course.

What is the difference between formative and summative assessment?

Formative assessments provide an opportunity for students to practice their skills and receive feedback – they do not contribute to the final degree outcome.

Summative assessments must be passed in order to progress through the course, and (in most cases) contribute directly to the final degree classification.

At an undergraduate level, termly collections and weekly tutorial essays are examples of formative assessment; Prelims and Finals (FHS) are the summative assessments, although only Finals contribute to the degree classification.

2.4 Course Structure

In the Final Honour School you will take Part 1 (MML Papers), either Part II or Part III (English Papers) and Part IV (Dissertation).

For your Modern Languages papers you will continue with language work and translations, and also choose two option papers.

For the English side of your programme, you will take three papers from the English single honours course, choosing to take all your papers from either English Course I or Course II, with the exception of Special Options (English Paper 6) where either modern or medieval options may be taken as you wish.

Finally, all students will write a dissertation in any area of English Language or Literature, or combining English with your Modern Language.

In total, up to four papers for EML (including the dissertation) may take the form of submitted work.

2.5 Recommended pattern of teaching

Please see the appropriate sections in the relevant handbooks of each parent school for more detailed information on typical patterns of teaching.

2.6 Course Paper information: EML Part I: Modern Languages (Papers 1 – 5)

EML Paper 1: ML Language Paper I

EML Paper 2: ML Language Paper II

EML Paper 3: ML Period of Literature paper (chosen from Papers VI, VII or VIII).

EML Paper 4: ML Option paper, chosen from the following: IV, V (Linguistics Papers), IX, X, XI (Prescribed Authors/Texts) or XII (Special Subject). Please note that Paper XII is taught in HT of the final year and therefore coincides with the English dissertation.

EML Paper 5: Oral examination

Further details of all papers are given in the Modern Languages Undergraduate Course Handbook and in the relevant language-specific Final Honour School Handbook (available at <https://canvas.ox.ac.uk/courses/20010>), and in the current Examination Regulations (<http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/examregs>).

2.7 Course Paper information: English (Papers 6-8)

You will offer three English papers and choose to take them either from EML Part II (English Course I) or EML Part III (English Course II).

2.7.1 EML Part II: English Course I

The three papers will be chosen from English FHS Course I Papers 1-6, listed below. A maximum of two of the three papers may be examined by submission.

- i) Shakespeare (English Course I, Paper 1). Examined by a portfolio of three essays submitted in Week 2 HT in the final year.

- ii) Literature in English 1350 – 1550 (English Course I, Paper 2). Examined by a timed exam.
- iii) Literature in English 1550 – 1660 (English Course I, Paper 3). Examined by a timed exam.
- iv) Literature in English 1660 – 1760 (English Course I, Paper 4). Examined by a timed exam.
- v) Literature in English 1760 – 1830 (English Course I, Paper 5). Examined by a timed exam.
- vi) Special Options (English Course I, Paper 6). Examined by an extended essay submitted in Week 8 MT in the final year (unless specified otherwise in the course description).

2.7.2 EML Part III: English Course II

The three papers will be chosen from English FHS Course II Papers 1-6, listed below. A maximum of two of the three papers may be examined by submission.

- i) Literature in English 650-1100 (English Course II, Paper 1). Examined by timed exam.
- ii) Medieval English and Related Literatures 1066-1550 (English Course II, Paper 2). Examined by timed exam.
- iii) Literature in English 1350 – 1550 (English Course II, Paper 3). Examined by timed exam.
- iv) The History of the English Language to c.1800 (English Course II, Paper 4). Examined by a portfolio of two essays submitted in Week 9 of Trinity Term of the second year.
- v) EITHER: The Material Text (English Course II, Paper 5a). Examined by a portfolio of two essays submitted in Week 2 HT in the final year.

or Shakespeare (English Course I, Paper 1 / Course II, Paper 5b). Examined by a portfolio of three essays submitted in Week 2 HT in the final year.

- vi) Special Options (as for English Course II, Paper 6). Examined by an extended essay submitted in Week 8 MT in the final year or by three-hour invigilated examination at the end of TT in the final year. Note that all ELL CII P6 options are also available to EML students following CII, including P6 a) “Literature in English 1550-1660, excluding the works of Shakespeare” (Course I P3).

Further details of all papers are given in your English Final Honour School Handbook and in the current Examination Regulations.

2.8 Course Paper Information: EML Part IV : Dissertation (English Paper 7):

This paper gives you the chance to explore a particular interest, to develop in more detail work on authors, topics, or genres that you have studied in your tutorials and classes for other papers, or to work on an area you may not have explored before, with a greater degree of freedom than is normally offered under the Special Options papers. You will submit a dissertation in any subject area of English Language or Literature in English, or may take a comparative approach combining English and your Modern Language. It is entirely appropriate for a dissertation to have a broad or thematic subject covering more than one period. The focus here is on independent research supervised by one or two tutors.

You can work on a single author or a range of authors in this paper, in English, or in English as well as your Modern Language. It is advisable to show knowledge of a good range of texts, and you should be able to situate your area of investigation in a wider context, depending on your specific interests and approach. Such contexts may comprise, for example, the history and theory of criticism, concepts of genre and literary tradition, feminist or post-colonial approaches to literature, political and cultural history, comparative approaches, or linguistic history and theory. The above list is not exhaustive, and these specific contexts need not apply; nor are these broad categories exclusive of one another. You are of course at liberty, in consultation with your tutor, to shape your own particular approach to your topic and choose a title accordingly.

It is not generally advisable to produce a title which looks like an examination question ('How do any two Victorian authors represent London?'). Instead, you might look at recent journal articles and chapters in edited collections to get a sense of the sorts of academic titling that are appropriate. The title should give a clear indication of the principal area to be covered by your dissertation: so 'Lady Mary Wroth in the House of Busirane' is a little opaque; 'Lady Mary Wroth in the House of Busirane: Wroth's use of Spenserian Romance' is preferable, because it gives a clear sense of what the dissertation is about. Remember that part of the task of setting a title is to identify an area you can properly cover within the word limit: an over-ambitious topic is not likely to give you the best opportunity to show your abilities to the full.

You should begin thinking about what topic you might choose in Trinity Term of your second year: tutors will arrange an initial consultation with you during this term, at which you will need to plan your initial reading for the summer vacation and your year abroad. If you choose a topic in which none of your college tutors is a specialist, they will find a dissertation supervisor or supervisors from another college to teach you. EML students wishing to write on both English and their Modern Language will normally have a supervisor each from English and MML.

You will then continue your research through Michaelmas Term of your fourth year, and will have to submit a summary of no more than 100 words to the Chair of Examiners by Thursday, Week 8 of that term. You will be informed as to whether your summary has been approved by the end of the first week of Hilary term.

Overall, you will receive a maximum of four hours supervision for this paper (whether in English solo, or in English and your Modern Language combined) including any email or phone contact. The distribution and timing of these sessions will be decided by you and your supervisor(s), depending on how much help you need at each stage of your research, and how far through your research you are at any particular point. Supervisors are allowed to give you reading suggestions, and to read dissertation plans and sections of your work, but are not permitted to comment on final drafts. You are not permitted to discuss with any tutor the content or format of the dissertation after Friday of 6th week, Hilary term.

In Hilary Term, the dissertation will normally be the main paper you are working on. The deadline for submitting the dissertation is noon on Tuesday, Week 9 of Hilary Term.

Structure of the examination: One dissertation of 7,000 - 8,000 words, submitted online by noon on Tuesday, Week 9 in Hilary Term of the third year.

2.9 Course organisation and distribution of workload across terms:

The richness of the EML course is in the range of options from which you can choose: in effect, every EML undergraduate constructs their own course. This means that, together with your college tutors, you need to think very carefully about how to arrange your work across the years, so as to make it both coherent and manageable. NOTE that not all permissible combinations of papers would be feasible in practice. For example, it would be unwise to schedule more than three papers in the final year (inclusive of the dissertation).

Given the multitude of options available to you in FHS, and the variety of teaching practices in different colleges, and different languages, we can only give you some very general guidelines.

The below is an example of how your course may be organised; please note that this may vary depending on your chosen papers and your college. The third year is the year abroad.

Language work continues throughout the course, so the information below relates only to the literature/ content papers.

EML Parts I, II & IV		EML Parts I, III & IV

	ELL Dissertation		ELL Dissertation

Year 2 (first year of FHS)

In your second year you will study at least three papers, two on the English side and at least one in Modern Languages. However, it is strongly recommended that you study a fourth paper so that the final year requires work on no more than three papers (inclusive of the dissertation).

The English papers will generally be:

Two period papers, or

Shakespeare / The Material Text + one period paper. (The Material text is available only if you are taking EML Part III)

For Modern Languages you will take the Period of Literature Paper (EML Paper 3, i.e. one of ML Papers VI, VII or VIII).

You should also ideally make a start on your ML option paper (EML Paper 4, i.e. one of ML IV, V, IX, X, XI, XII) during your second year: this is a good way to avoid overload in the fourth year.

You will work out with your college tutors how best to arrange this work.

Year 3: Year Abroad (see point 2.10)

Year 4 (final year of FHS)

In your fourth year there should ideally be no more than three papers left for you to study, one of which is your English dissertation which will be submitted at the end of HT. Please note that ML Paper XII (one of the EML Paper 4 Options) is taught in HT of the final year, so this is not usually an advisable choice for EML students, unless you schedule your work in such a way that the dissertation is drafted over MT of the final year.

On the English side, you will take either a period paper or a special option (Paper 6). In addition, if you have chosen to take Shakespeare or The Material Text (EML part III only), you will submit a portfolio of essays for this paper in Week 2, HT. Note that if you have chosen both Paper 6 and Shakespeare / The Material Text, you will have three submission deadlines for English in the final year.

For Modern Languages you will take or complete an option paper (EML Paper 4, i.e. one of ML Papers IV, V, IX, X, XI or XII), if you didn't take this in Year 2.

Note: Up to four papers for EML may take the form of submitted work, and you can combine English and Modern Languages papers that have similar deadlines so long as your College tutors can arrange for you to spread the work out sensibly. If necessary, the Chair of EML Examiners can give early approval of extended essay topics in order to make this possible.

However, it is imperative to discuss your choice of papers with your tutors so that your Year 4 is not overloaded. It would be advisable to avoid choosing a combination that requires you to study more than three papers in the final year, inclusive of the dissertation. Careful planning is therefore essential.

2.10 The Year Abroad

The Year Abroad is a key part of your Modern Languages degree at Oxford, giving you the opportunity to develop skills which can only be acquired in a situation where your languages are used day-to-day. The Faculty subscribes to the benchmark statement about the role of the Year Abroad made by the Quality Assurance Agency in its subject benchmark statement for courses on languages, cultures and societies: a compulsory year abroad makes 'a significant, and often essential, contribution to the development and enhancement of knowledge, understanding and skills in linguistic and socio-cultural studies. Such residence may involve periods of study in target language communities, academic exchanges, work placements or assistantships, as circumstances permit. It contributes experiences and contacts that can be valuable in subsequent careers. It also encourages intercultural awareness and capability, qualities of self-reliance and other generic skills. These further enable graduates to become mobile and transnational citizens in the global environment.' You are required to spend a period of not less than 24 weeks abroad over the course of the year.

The objectives of the Year Abroad are:

- To provide opportunities for, and stimulate contact with, competent speakers of the target language(s)
- To optimise the opportunities for linguistic progress, for the development of cultural insight and for academic and personal development resulting from extended contact with the target language environment
- To enable students to reflect on and develop their own language learning skills and techniques
- To develop intercultural understanding and awareness

More detailed information about planning the Year Abroad can be found in the Modern Languages Undergraduate Course Handbook on Canvas and on the dedicated webpages at:

3.2 Examinations

Exam conventions are the formal record of the specific assessment standards for the course or courses to which they apply. They set out how your examined work will be marked and how the resulting marks will be used to arrive at a final result and classification of your award. They include information on: marking scales, marking and classification criteria, scaling of marks, progression, resits, penalties for late submission and penalties for over-length work. Detailed examination conventions are published separately to this handbook.

3.2.1 Examiners

Candidates should not under any circumstances seek to make direct contact with individual internal or external examiners regarding the content, conduct, or outcome of an examination. Any queries should be addressed to the Chair of Examiners via the Examinations Secretary. If you are unhappy with an aspect of your assessment you may make a complaint or appeal (see Section 4.6).

Examiners' reports can be found on the faculties' Canvas pages.

3.2.2 Old English and Early Middle English character protocol for timed exams

Most special characters for Old English and Early Middle English letters (æ, ð, þ) are available on Inspira by clicking the Special Characters button (Ω), or they can be copied and pasted from your computer into the Inspira submission box. Alternatively, candidates who are typing their exams for any reason can represent these characters as follows:

Ð or ð (eth)	dh
Þ or þ (thorn)	th
Æ or æ (ash)	ae
Ȝ (yogh)	3

For portfolios and dissertations (as opposed to timed exams) the English Faculty expects the correct characters to be used rather than the exam protocol, which is intended to aid rapid typing. Students choosing to use the Old English or Early Middle English characters rather than the conventions in an exam will not be penalised.

3.3 Good academic practice

Plagiarism is presenting someone else's work or ideas as your own, with or without their consent, by incorporating it into your work without full acknowledgement. All published and unpublished material, whether in manuscript, printed or electronic form, is covered under this definition.

Plagiarism may be intentional or reckless, or unintentional. Under the regulations for examinations, intentional or reckless plagiarism is a disciplinary offence. The Proctors regard plagiarism as a serious form of cheating for which offenders can expect to receive severe penalties.

Resources

All students are required to watch the online English faculty video on avoiding plagiarism, by Professor Adam Smyth.

The university website has information about what plagiarism is and how you can avoid it, as well as an extensive set of resources to help you maintain good academic practice.

Guidance on good referencing practice can be found in section 3.6 of this handbook.

Further to this we would recommend all students use the online learning opportunities to develop their skills further.

There is an online course from the university, providing a useful overview of the issues surrounding plagiarism and practical ways to avoid it.

Auto-plagiarism

You must not submit for summative assessment work you have already submitted for a previous summative assessment (partially or in full), either for your current course or for another qualification of this or any other institution. This counts as “auto-plagiarism”. This means, for instance, that you should not cut and paste sentences or paragraphs from previously submitted essays, or include passages of identical or very similar analysis of the same or similar parts of primary texts.

Where earlier work by you is citable, ie. it has already been published, you must reference it as normal.

3.4 Word Limits & Appendices

The word limits stated for portfolio essays, extended essays and dissertations in ELL include footnotes, headings, and captions, but exclude bibliographies, appendices, and the title of the essay/dissertation. Images, tables and figures are permitted where they may usefully illustrate the argument, and may be included without having to make a special request.

Word limits are applied strictly, and there is no acceptable “buffer” before a penalty is applied for over-length work.

The following information on a cover sheet is excluded from the word limit: your candidate number, the assessment, the title(s) of your submission (if applicable), and the word count(s). Any additional text included on a cover sheet will contribute to the word count.

Any text not explicitly excluded from the word limit is included in the word count. You are advised not to include a dedication/acknowledgement, table of contents or an abstract, and warned that these will be counted within the word limit. Penalties will be imposed by the Examining Board should you exceed the maximum word limit.

Appendices should generally only be included if you are referring to unpublished evidence of primary importance (especially if it is unlikely to be readily accessible to your examiners), or for translations or images. The vast majority of submissions will not require an appendix. Where an appendix is deemed necessary, every effort should be made to keep it as short as possible. In cases of uncertainty about the inclusion of an appendix it is a good idea to consult your tutor for advice.

Images, tables and figures are permitted where they may usefully illustrate the argument, and may be included without having to make a special request. Images of text may only be used where this is to illustrate a particular editing convention or visual feature of the manuscript, and may not be used to circumvent the word limit. Unless the visual appearance of the text is of primary importance, quotations should be made in textual, rather than image, format.

For English Special Options (Paper 6), if your essay requires extensive quotation from texts in languages other than English, the substantive passages should be included in the text in translation (as seems best for your argument), and the original text should be provided in an appendix. The original text will not be included in the word count.

For the Dissertation (Paper 9) (where a comparative approach is permitted) students are advised to leave quotations in the original language, but to provide translations in English in the footnotes. Only the original quotation and not the translation will count towards the word limit (you will have to deduct the number of words in the translated quotes manually).

In the unlikely event that you take a Paper XII special subject in Modern Languages, guidance on submissions can be found here.

3.5 Presentation

All submissions will be in PDF format. We recommend that the body of the text should be 1.5 or double-spaced, in either 11 or 12 point of a formal and readable font (such as Times New Roman). Quotations should not be italicized. Short quotations of a single sentence of prose, or less than three lines of verse, should be incorporated in the main text. Longer quotations should be set in a separate paragraph, indented and single-spaced. Don't indent the first line of the first paragraph, or the first paragraph of a new section of the essays. Indent all subsequent paragraphs. You may wish to split your essays into titled sub-sections; this is at your discretion (but remember that starting a new section is no substitute for having a coherent flow of argument). Please remember to number the pages of your essays.

3.6 References and Bibliography

Neither the English Faculty nor the Modern Languages Faculty imposes a mandatory referencing system, though your tutors may communicate their own preferences to you in the matter of style. It is compulsory, however, to present your work in a form that complies with academic standards of precision, clarity, and fullness of reference, and guidance is offered by both faculties. Whatever system you employ, please remember these three essentials:

i) Consistency

Ensure that you are using the same style and format for your references throughout your work.

ii) Clarity

Remember that references are included primarily as a guide for the reader. The more explicit you make your citations, the easier it is for anyone reading your work to find your sources.

iii) Common sense

You will at some stage have to deal with a citation or a reference from a source which does not easily fit into a prescribed system. On these occasions, employing your own judgement will probably enable you to generate a reference in line with the others in your document.

An introduction to a common referencing system, MHRA (Modern Humanities Research Association), is included below. This is intended for guidance only, and you are free to adopt other scholarly systems if you prefer. Paying close attention to the referencing systems used in the academic publications you read is another good way to familiarise yourself with habits of scholarly presentation.

A small sample bibliography of style handbooks is also given here, and you will find copies of these in the Bodleian and the Humanities Library, as well as many other Oxford libraries. Style handbooks will go into much greater detail about formatting and writing habits than this Faculty handbook, which only covers methods of referencing.

3.6.2 Modern Humanities Research Association (MHRA) referencing

Below is a brief explanation of two MHRA approved referencing systems:

1. MHRA (general)
2. The author-date system

Both of the systems explained below have two points of reference. Firstly, each time you use a quotation, or any other information taken directly from your source, you must place a reference within the text (in parentheses) or in a footnote. Secondly, at the end of your work you will need to include a full bibliography detailing all sources. This is the case even for a system like the first which also provides full bibliographic detail within the text.

A guide to drawing up your bibliography is also provided below; see 3.5.4. Because references in the text and in footnotes will count against the word limit, you might like to consider a system (like the author-date system) which reduces the number of words contained in the reference.

3.6.2.1 MHRA (general)

The general MHRA system requires that the first reference to every book, article or other publication in your document should be given in full. Thereafter, references to the same publication may take an abbreviated, but easily identifiable, form (see below, Abbreviated references).

Books

In general, a full reference to a book would appear in a footnote and be presented in the following order, with each piece of information separated from the next by a comma. (It may not be necessary to include all of this information for every book you refer to) :

1. Author: in the form given on the title page, and with first name preceding surname. When referring to an edition of a primary work which contains the author's name in the title, as with The Sermons of John Donne, it is not essential to repeat 'John Donne' before the title.
2. Title: in full and in italics. The initial letters of all principal words should be capitalised.
3. Editor / translator, etc.: in the form 'ed. by', 'trans. by', 'rev. by'.
4. Series: if the book belongs in a series, give the series title and volume number.
5. Edition: if other than the first edition, specify '2nd edn', 'rev. edn' etc.
6. Number of volumes: if the work is in several volumes, state this in the form '4 vols'.
7. Details of publication: these should be enclosed in round brackets, and take the form (Place of publication: Publisher, Date).
8. Volume number: in roman numerals. Where necessary, include the publication date of the volume in brackets after the volume number.
9. Page numbers: preceded by 'p.' or 'pp.', unless you have included a volume number.

Here are some examples of first references to books under the MHRA system:

Edmund Spenser, The Shorter Poems, ed. by Richard McCabe (London: Penguin, 1999), p. 221

Patrick Collinson, The Religion of Protestants: the Church in English Society 1559-1625 (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1982), pp.7-12

Francis Bacon, The Advancement of Learning, ed. and with introduction, notes and commentary by Michael Kiernan, The Oxford Francis Bacon, IV (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 2000), p. 66

The Book of Margery Kempe, ed. by Barry Windeatt (London: Longman, 2000), pp. 41 – 50

Paul Strohm, Social Chaucer, 2nd edn (Cambridge, Mass: Harvard University Press, 1994), pp. 47 - 83

Chapters or articles in books

Information about a chapter or an article published in a book should be presented in the following order:

1. Author
2. Article title: in single quotation marks and not italicised.
3. 'in': preceded by a comma
4. Title, editor and publication details of the book as described above
5. First and last pages of article: preceded by 'pp.'
6. Page number of reference: in parentheses and preceded by 'p.' or 'pp.'

E.g.:

Mark Thornton Burnett, “‘We are the makers of manners’: The Branagh Phenomenon”, in Shakespeare After Mass Media, ed. by Richard Burt (Basingstoke: Palgrave, 2002), pp. 83 – 105 (p. 91)

Virginia Woolf, ‘A Letter to a Young Poet’, in The Essays of Virginia Woolf: Volume 5 1929 - 1932, ed. by Stuart N. Clarke (London: The Hogarth Press, 2009), pp. 306 - 323

Journal articles

A reference to a journal article should be composed as follows:

1. Author
2. Article title: in single quotation marks and not italicised
3. Journal title: in italics
3. Series number: in Arabic numerals, not Roman
4. Volume number: in Arabic numerals, not Roman
5. Year of publication: in parentheses
6. First and last pages of article: without ‘pp.’
7. Page number of reference: in parentheses and preceded by ‘p.’ or ‘pp.’

E.g.:

Brean Hammond, ‘Joseph Addison’s Opera Rosamond: Britishness in the Early Eighteenth Century’, ELH, 73.3 (Fall 2006), 601 – 629 (p. 616)

Sylvia Federico, ‘Chaucer and the Matter of Spain’, The Chaucer Review, 45.3 (2011), 299 – 320 (pp. 301 – 307)

Film

1. Title: in italics
2. Phrase ‘dir. by’ followed by the director’s forename(s) and surname(s)
3. In brackets, name of distributor followed by a comma, followed by year of release

If recorded:

4. In square brackets, material type (e.g. CD, DVD)

OR

5. Type of source followed by a comma
6. Title of website followed by a comma
7. If available, date published/uploaded

E.g.:

Jacob's Ladder, dir. by Adrian Lyne (Tri-Star Pictures, 1990)

OR

Jacob's Ladder, dir. by Adrian Lyne (Tri-Star Pictures, 1990), streamed online, Paramount Plus, 2021.

Episode of a Television Programme/Series

1. In single inverted commas, title of episode followed by a comma
2. In italics, title of series/programme followed by a comma
2. Name of TV channel followed by a comma
3. Date of broadcast

If recorded:

4. In square brackets, material type (e.g. CD, DVD)

OR

5. Type of source followed by a comma
6. Title of database/website followed by a comma
7. If available, date published/uploaded

E.g.:

'The Renaissance Will Not Be Televised', Cunk on Earth, BBC Two, November 2022.

Online resources

An increasingly large amount of academic information can be found online. When choosing whether to use an online resource, you should use your judgement in determining the quality of the material. Who has created it, and why? Is it appropriate for academic citation?

When referencing an online source, you should keep as closely as possible to the guidelines given above for printed sources. Information should be supplied in the following order:

1. Author
2. Title
3. Title of complete work / resource: this might be the name of the website or an online database, or might be the bibliographic details for an online journal or text

4. Publication details: where known, supply the volume and date
5. Full web address, URL or DOI: in angle brackets < >. If you can find a stable URL or the DOI listed, this is better than the sometimes very lengthy web address you will have in your browser window. Avoid using TinyURL or similar for academic citation.
6. Date of consultation: in square brackets
7. Location of reference: for example, the paragraph number or page number where supplied. Include in parentheses.

E.g.:

Rosemary O'Day, 'Family Galleries: Women and Art in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries', Huntingdon Library Quarterly, 71.2 (June 2008), <<http://www.jstor.org/stable/10.1525/hlq.2008.71.2.323>>, [accessed 14 March 2011] (p. 332)

Hans J. Hillebrand, 'Reformation', in Encyclopedia of Religion,
<<http://go.galegroup.com/ps/i.do?&id=GALE%7CCX3424502608&v=2.1&u=oxford&it=r&p=GVRL&sw=w>>, [accessed 6 November 2010] (p. 7657)

Melvyn New, 'Sterne, Lawrence (1713 – 1768)', in Oxford Dictionary of National Biography, <<http://www.oxforddnb.com/view/article/26412>>, [accessed 22 May 2011] (para. 12 – 16)

As more resources are accessed online, academic sites and databases regularly provide users with detailed bibliographic information about their content (often located at the very end of an article), which can be very useful when composing your footnotes.

Video Games

References to software should provide the author or designer (if identifiable), the title in italics, the date, and the platform, e.g.:

Emily Short, Galatea (2000), Z-machine.

Id Software, Doom (1993), MS-DOS and subsequently other platforms.

Neil McFarland and Ken Wong for Ustwo, Monument Valley (2014), iOS and Android.

Abbreviated references

After your initial, full reference, you can save space in the rest of your document by using abbreviated references to repeated sources. These abbreviated references can either be included as further footnotes, or can be placed in parentheses in the body of your document. In addition, it is permissible to include all abbreviated references to primary sources in parentheses and all abbreviated references to secondary sources as footnotes if you so choose.

Abbreviated references will normally consist of the author's name followed by the page reference (and the volume reference where necessary) as: (Strohm, 91).

Where more than one work by an author has been cited, you may also need to include a short version of the title, in addition to author, volume and page:

MHRA discourages the use of 'op. cit.', 'loc. cit.' and 'ibid.'

If you are writing an essay which consistently refers to a set of primary texts by the same author you may like to adopt a system of abbreviation. Following your first (full) citation of each text, you might say at the end of a footnote “All subsequent references are to this edition and incorporated into the body of the essay”. Thereafter, you can place page numbers in parentheses within the text. If there is any ambiguity as to which primary text you are referring to, include a short title.

Alternatively, if you are consistently referring to a set of original primary sources such as manuscripts, or again, you are relying on a particular group of texts which you need to refer to repeatedly in your work, you may include a section in your bibliography that shows the abbreviations you will use for each source. For example, if you were writing an essay about Bacon’s Advancement of Learning and you were using the Michael Kiernan edition cited above as your primary text, you might enter it into your list of abbreviations as follows:

AL	Francis Bacon, The Advancement of Learning , ed. and with introduction, notes and commentary by Michael Kiernan, The Oxford Francis Bacon, IV (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 2000)
----	--

You would then label all references to the text with AL and the page number (again, you can do this in parentheses or in footnotes).

3.6.2.2 MHRA (author – date system)

This system can save you space when you are working to a word limit. Instead of including full references in the document, all source information is contained in a comprehensive bibliography at the end of your document. Such a bibliography would not be included in any word counts.

Your bibliography should be arranged in alphabetical order by author surname, and multiple works by one author should be arranged by date of publication. If two or more works by the same author share a publication date, you should distinguish between them by marking them e.g. ‘1995a’ and ‘1995b’. The form of each entry should follow the guidelines below in the section on Bibliographies.

When you need to make a reference in your document, you should include it in the body of the text in parentheses. It should give the author’s surname, the date of publication and the page reference, in the following form: (Colclough, 2001: 105). If your text already mentions the author’s name, as in “Colclough suggests that...”, you may omit the name from the reference in parentheses.

3.6.3 Citing the OED

OED Online (www.oed.com) is an online resource in which the content changes every three months when new and revised entries (along with other editorial and discursive material) are uploaded to the website. When citing OED Online as your authority for a definition, or for any other information in an entry (etymology, pronunciation, labelling, range and date of illustrative quotations, etc), you need to specify two things:

(1) The date at which you accessed the website - simply attach the words 'accessed MONTH DAY YEAR' as appropriate to whatever information you cite from the dictionary

(2) The date at which the content you cite was published. As in the sample entry for relic (n.), which is given below, you can find this information in the top left-hand corner. This confirms when the entry for a word was last updated, hence 'Revised 2009' for relic.

1. In the Christian Church, esp. the Roman Catholic and...

2. In plural. That which remains or is left behind, esp. after...

1.a. In the Christian Church, esp. the Roman Catholic and Orthodox churches: the physical remains (as the body or a part of it) of a saint, martyr, or other deceased holy person, or a thing believed to be sanctified by contact with him or her (such as a personal possession or piece of clothing), preserved as an object of veneration and often enshrined in some ornate receptacle. Also figurative.

In plural sometimes denoting the whole body of the person, or its parts: see sense 3. In singular sometimes applied to both the relic and the receptacle containing it: cf. sense 1c.

It also provides an option to see the entry history. Clicking on 'entry history' for relic reveals that relic, n. was revised in December 2009 [i.e. this is the date when a full revision was carried out] relic, n. was last modified in June 2026. [i.e. this is the date when some changes were introduced]. This can be useful when mapping changes across time.

The entry history also lists which earlier editions of the OED had entries for this word and offers a direct link to the entry in the 1989 2nd edition.

Entry history for relic, n.

relic, n. was revised in December 2009.

relic, n. was last modified in June 2026.

Revision of the OED is a long-term project, and oed.com is a living text, updated every three months. Modifications may include:

- corrections and revisions to definitions, especially to improve clarity, accuracy, or intelligibility;
- new or updated quotation evidence, and reverified or redated bibliographical information;
- new or updated pronunciations (transcriptions and audio files);
- new or revised etymological information and improved coverage of variant spellings;
- new senses or phrases added in print and online updates since OED2 (1989).

Revisions and additions of this kind were last incorporated into relic, n. in June 2026.

Earlier versions of this entry were published in:

OED First Edition (1906)
Find out more

OED Second Edition (1989)
Find out more
View relic, n. and a. in OED Second Edition

A sample reference for relic (n.), sense 4, would therefore look like:

Relic, n., sense 4.d: 'An old, outmoded, or outdated person or thing; someone or something left over from an earlier era, or having the characteristics of a former time', OED Online (revised entry Dec 2009, accessed MONTH DAY YEAR). Note that there is no need to cite the URL

Since OED Online is a work in progress, some entries, such as that for yore, have, however, not been fully revised since the serial publication of the first edition of the OED (1884-1928). The entry for yore therefore states 'First published 1921; not fully revised' while the entry history gives the information that:

yore, adv. (& adj.) was first published in 1921; not fully revised.

yore, adv. (& adj.) was last modified in June 2026.

Although this confirms that some changes have been made, these do not amount to a full revision such that the entry may be significantly out of date. For an up-to-date definition of yore you would therefore need to use either a good quality recently published print dictionary or a reliable online equivalent.

When citing not fully revised entries you should be sure to specify the date of first publication, e.g. yore, adv. (& adj.), sense 1a: 'A long time ago; of old; frequently strengthened by full; also in collocation with ago, agone. it is (gone) yore (that..): long ago. Obsolete.', OED Online (entry first published 1921, accessed MONTH DAY YEAR)

As before, there is no need to cite the URL.

You can find more information on OED entries & their updating at:

3.6.4 Citation of objects in written work

Illustrations may be gathered in one place at the end of the work, or, if you prefer, incorporated with the text. Captions within the text, and 'List of Illustrations' at the end of the essay, should contain the same information but captions should minimally include the following:

- artist/architect/maker /manufacturer (e.g. Meissen)
- title of work/name of building/object description (e.g. teapot)
- date of production (date range or century acceptable)
- present location
- brief reference for the source of the illustration

The 'List of Illustrations' should include the following information, in the recommended order:

1. artist/architect/maker
2. title of work/name of building/object description
3. size (metric)
4. medium (e.g. engraving; ceramic; textile; mixed media)

5. date of production
6. present location
7. brief reference for the source of the illustration (e.g., your own photograph, a museum photograph, copied from a book or the internet – if the last, give URL as you would for written work).

You should illustrate your work carefully since good illustrations can be vital to supporting your arguments. Wherever possible, you should use good quality, high-resolution illustrations of images, objects or buildings discussed at any length in the text. Illustrations can be in black and white; colour illustrations are only necessary if used to support a specifically ‘colour-related’ point in your argument or discussion. Captions can simply be numbered sequentially as Fig. 1, Fig. 2, etc., since the reader will be able to refer to the ‘List of Illustrations’ for the full information. Make sure you refer to your illustrations at appropriate points in your text and argument, with the relevant figure number in brackets, thus: (Fig. 10).”

Captions and lists of illustrations do not count as part of the overall word limit; neither do illustrations themselves.

3.6.5 Bibliographies

As with referencing, the format of your bibliography may vary according to the system you employ. Again, the most important thing is to maintain consistency in the way you present your sources in your bibliography.

If you have been using the MHRA referencing system outlined above, each item in your bibliography can be presented in much the same way as for the first full reference. The principal difference is that it is general practice to reverse the author’s surname and first name, as in the example below. When a work has more than one author or editor, you need only invert the first named author.

E.g.:

Berg, Christian, Frank Durieux, and Geert Lernout, eds., The Turn of the Century: Modernism and Modernity in Literature and the Arts (Antwerp: DeGruyter, 1995)

Caws, Mary Ann, ed., Mallarmé in Prose, trans. by Rosemary Lloyd and Mary Ann Caws (New York: New Directions, 2001)

Page numbers are not required in a bibliography unless you are listing an article or chapter that appears within another publication.

Your bibliography should be ordered alphabetically and thereafter by date of publication. Do not include full stops after each item in the list.

It is common, but not required, to divide your sources into primary and secondary works.

3.6.6 Online referencing tutorial

The Humanities Library has produced an online guide covering referencing and bibliography. It should be used as a supplement to the information given in this handbook. Students taking Course II should first consult their tutors regarding referencing styles.

<https://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/english/referencing>

The Humanities Library also runs training sessions on referencing, which will be advertised

4 ABOUT THE FACULTIES

4.1 Key Contacts and the Faculty Offices

These notes of guidance will provide you with information about the English and Modern Languages FHS course, but if you do have any enquiries, a good first point of contact is the Faculty Office at both the English and the Modern Languages Faculties.

If your query or concern relates to the Joint School of English and Modern Languages itself, rather than one of the parent faculties, contact the Chair of the Joint School Committee.

The English Faculty Office is located on the first floor of the Schwarzman Centre for the Humanities in the Radcliffe Observatory Quarter. During term-time (including week 0 and week 9) the office is open every weekday from 9.00 to 5.30 (4.30 on Fridays). In the vacations, the office is open 9.00 to 5.00 (4.30 on Fridays). You can also call the office on 01865 271 055 or e-mail english.office@ell.ox.ac.uk.

The Modern Languages Faculty Office is located on the third floor of the Schwarzman Centre. It is open every weekday between 8.30 and 5.15. You can call on 01865 270 750 or office@mod-langs.ox.ac.uk.

Students with a disability, as well as students who develop any health issues during the course of their studies, are invited to contact Andy Davice, the Academic Administrator, Welfare and Disability Coordinator at the English Faculty, if they have any questions or concerns. The Disability Lead for the Faculty is Professor Simon Horobin (who is also Chair of the Faculty Board).

The following people are also on hand to help you with any queries:

- Your college tutors
- Lis Allen, Academic Administration Officer, 01865 (2) 71540, undergrad@ell.ox.ac.uk
- Andy Davice, Academic Administrator, Student Welfare and Disability Coordinator - English Faculty, 01865 (2)71930, andy.davice@ell.ox.ac.uk
- Tom Manning, FHS Administration Assistant, fhs@ell.ox.ac.uk
- Catherine Pillonel, Modern Languages Undergraduates Studies and Examinations Officer, and Disability Coordinator 01865 (2)70736, catherine.pillonel@mod-langs.ox.ac.uk
- Professor David Dwan, Director of Undergraduate Studies (English), David.dwan@hertford.ox.ac.uk

Harassment

The Faculties are committed to creating a happy and healthy working environment, where everyone is treated with respect and dignity. We do not tolerate any form of harassment or bullying.

English Harassment Advisors

Professor Andrew Klevan, andrew.klevan@st-annes.ox.ac.uk

Dr Rachel Burns, rachel.burns@ell.ox.ac.uk

Modern Languages Harassment Advisors

Ms Alejandra Crosta, alejandra.crosta@mod-langs.ox.ac.uk

The Harassment Advisors offer confidential support to all members of the Faculty. Seeking support from one of our Advisors is not the same as making a complaint – this is an informal opportunity to seek confidential advice. In some instances, this may be enough to resolve the issue. In other cases, should you decide to make a complaint, the Harassment Advisor can be a valuable source of support and guidance. Alternatively, if you do not feel comfortable talking to someone from within the Faculty, you can access the University's anonymous Harassment Line.

Email: harassment.line@admin.ox.ac.uk

Telephone 01865 (2)70760. See <http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/eop/harassmentadvice/>

The University Sexual Harassment and Violence Support Service provides a safe place for students to be heard – independent of their college or department, offering free support and advice to any student who has been affected by sexual harassment or violence.

The service supports students in all situations, whether the experiences of sexual harassment or violence happened in Oxford or elsewhere, and whether it was recent or in the past.

4.2 Committees and Decision-making within the Faculties

The Modern Languages and English Faculties follow similar decision making procedures, as outlined below:

Strategic decisions are taken by the Faculty Boards, in consultation with the Faculty (in the case of Modern Languages, mainly in consultation with language-based Sub-Faculties), and all other committees report to the Faculty Boards. Each Faculty Board is made up of elected representatives of all members of the Faculty, including a graduate and an undergraduate junior member.

There are a number of standing committees that report to the Faculty Boards. In addition to these, there are two joint consultative committees (made up of academics and students) – one for graduates and one for undergraduates. See section 4.3 below.

Changes to the English or Modern Languages courses are typically discussed at the Undergraduate Studies Committee (English) or at Sub-Faculty meetings and Undergraduate Studies Committee (Modern Languages), and then referred to the Faculty Boards for approval. All significant changes to courses must be agreed by the University's Education Committee, published in the Gazette and amended in the Examination Regulations.

On a day to day basis, the Faculties are managed by the Chairs of the Faculty Boards and the Faculty Heads of Administration and Finance.

Changes to the English and Modern Languages course specifically are primarily dealt with by the English and Modern Languages Joint Schools Standing Committee, which meets once a term. All decisions by this committee are then passed on to the Undergraduate Studies Committee or Academic Policy Committee, and follow the normal procedure from then on.

The English academic officers are (2026-27):

- Professor Simon Horobin (Magdalen), Chair of the Faculty Board
- Professor David Dwan (Hertford), Director of Undergraduate Studies
- Professor Matthew Bevis (Keble), Director of Taught Graduate Studies
- Professor Sos Eltis (Brasenose), Director of Undergraduate Admissions
- Professor Rebecca Beasley (Queens), Director of Doctoral Studies
- Professor Peter Boxall (New), Director of Research

The Modern Languages academic officers are (2026-27):

- Professor Phillip Rothwell (Schwarzman Centre for the Humanities), Chair of the Faculty Board

Dr Laura Lonsdale (Queens), Director of Undergraduate Studies

Professor Catriona Seth (All Souls), Director of Graduate Studies (Postgraduate Research)

Dr Rajendra Chitnis (University), Director of Masters Courses

4.3 The Undergraduate Joint Consultative Committee (JCC)

The Joint Consultative Committee for each Faculty meets once a term. The Committees comprise a number of Faculty post-holders and two undergraduate representatives from each college.

The Committee considers all aspects of Faculty activity that affects Undergraduates, for example: syllabus, teaching and examining arrangements and library facilities (though there is also a committee for library provision which deals in greater detail with the latter). The JCC also provides members for the various other committees and bodies on which students are represented (the relevant Faculty Board and Undergraduate Studies Committee, the joint schools' committees and the Committee for Library Provision). The JCC will have various items of discussion referred to it by Faculty Board and other committees for consideration, but JCC members, and the students whom they represent, can also ask for items to be put on the agenda for consideration.

If you wish to serve on the English JCC, you should talk to the senior English tutor in your college. If you wish to serve on the Modern Languages JCC, you should contact the Undergraduate Studies and Examinations Officer (catherine.pillonel@mod-langs.ox.ac.uk)

4.4 Evaluation and feedback

The University, Faculty and your college are always keen to receive comments (good or bad) about your experience of studying English at Oxford. You are welcome to discuss any problems with the Director of Undergraduate Studies or the Academic Office (undergrad@ell.ox.ac.uk). Alternatively, you can bring issues or suggestions to your JCC representative who will raise them at the next meeting of the Committee (see section 4.3). All items discussed at JCC meetings are seen by the Undergraduate Studies Committee and the Faculty Board.

Students on full-time and part-time matriculated courses are surveyed once per year on all aspects of their course (learning, living, pastoral support, college) through the Student Barometer. Previous results can be viewed by students, staff and the general public at: www.ox.ac.uk/students/life/student-surveys

Final year undergraduate students are surveyed instead through the National Student Survey. Results from previous NSS can be found at discoveruni.gov.uk/

4.5.2 Modern Languages Buildings

Information about accessibility for Modern Languages buildings can be found at <https://www.accessguide.ox.ac.uk/academic-departments?filter=5996-departments-4111811=71671&page=4111811=0>

4.6 Complaints and academic appeals

Complaints and academic appeals within the faculty of English

If you have a complaint, an informal discussion with the person immediately responsible for the issue that you wish to complain about (and who may not be one of the individuals identified below) is often the simplest way to achieve a satisfactory resolution.

Many sources of advice are available from colleges, faculties/departments and bodies like the Counselling Service or the Oxford SU Student Advice Service, which have extensive experience in advising students. You may wish to take advice from one of those sources before pursuing your complaint.

General areas of concern about provision affecting students as a whole should be raised through Joint Consultative Committees or via student representation on the faculty/department's committees.

Complaints

If your concern or complaint relates to teaching or other provision made by the Faculty, then you should raise it with Director of Undergraduate Studies. Complaints about departmental facilities should be made to the Departmental administrator. If you feel unable to approach one of those individuals, you may contact the Head of Faculty. The officer concerned will attempt to resolve your concern/complaint informally.

For complaints and academic appeals relating to Modern Languages, please refer to the Modern Languages FHS Handbook.

If your issue relates to the course overall, contact the Chair of the Joint Standing Committee.

If you are dissatisfied with the outcome, you may take your concern further by making a formal complaint to the Proctors under the University Student Complaints Procedure (<https://www.ox.ac.uk/students/academic/complaints>).

If your concern or complaint relates to teaching or other provision made by your college, you should raise it either with your tutor or with one of the college officers, Senior Tutor, Tutor for Graduates (as appropriate). Your college will also be able to explain how to take your complaint further if you are dissatisfied with the outcome of its consideration.

Academic appeals

An academic appeal is an appeal against the decision of an academic body (e.g. boards of examiners, transfer and confirmation decisions etc.), on grounds such as procedural error or evidence of bias. There is no right of appeal against academic judgement.

If you have any concerns about your assessment process or outcome it is advisable to discuss these first informally with your subject or college tutor, Senior Tutor, course director, director of studies, supervisor or college or departmental administrator as appropriate. They will be able to explain the assessment process that was undertaken and may be able to address your concerns. Queries must not be raised directly with the examiners.

If you still have concerns you can make a formal appeal to the Proctors who will consider appeals under the University Academic Appeals Procedure (<https://www.ox.ac.uk/students/academic/complaints>).

4.7 Career development

A number of English graduates (about 7 %) choose to undertake research, while many more use the communication and analytical skills they develop at Oxford in a range of careers including advertising, acting, publishing, teaching, librarianship, public relations, journalism, the legal profession, management consultancy and finance.

For career information relating to Modern Languages, please refer to the Modern Languages Undergraduate Course Handbook on WebLearn.

Comprehensive careers advice and guidance is available from the Oxford University Careers Service, and not just while you are here: our careers support is for life. We offer tailored individual advice, job fairs and workshops to inform your job search and application process, whether your next steps are within academia or beyond. You will also have access to thousands of UK-based and international internships, work experience and job vacancies available on the Careers Service website (www.careers.ox.ac.uk)

Supplementary talks and events at the faculty will be advertised as appropriate.

4.8 Prizes

The faculty runs a number of different prize competitions. Students are invited to interpret the title to produce work that they think addresses or unfolds it in interesting ways; literary and creative and analytic approaches – or a combination of all three – are equally welcome.

Full details, including the subjects of the prizes, can be found here:

<https://www.english.ox.ac.uk/prizes-and-studentships>

5 RESOURCES, FUNDING AND SUPPORT

5.1 Guidelines for Neurodivergent and Disabled Students

The University is fully committed to exemplary inclusive teaching practice, anticipating the needs of neurodivergent and disabled students and providing inclusive teaching that enables them to thrive and achieve their potential. The university's current access and participation plan includes the objective to increase the proportion of disabled students awarded good degrees to 94% by 2028/29 and to support students' mental health and wellbeing.

The University is also bound by the Equality Act of 2010 to promote equality, diversity and inclusion and abide by its anti-discrimination legislation. This includes the legal responsibility to make reasonable adjustments to educational provision where neurodivergent or disabled students might otherwise be at a substantial disadvantage.

General advice about provision for neurodivergent and disabled students at Oxford can be found on the University's Disability Advisory Service website at <https://www.ox.ac.uk/students/welfare/disability>. English Faculty contacts for disability and neurodivergence can be found at <https://www.english.ox.ac.uk/equality-and-diversity>. The disability co-ordinator for the English Faculty is Andy Davice (andy.davice@ell.ox.ac.uk).

UK students should check whether they are eligible for Disabled Students' Allowance: <https://www.gov.uk/disabled-students-allowance-dsa/eligibility>. This includes disabilities, mental health conditions, and specific learning difficulties that affect your ability to study. It can pay for disability-related study support, such as specialist mentoring, as well as the costs of specialist equipment and assistive software. You can apply for it before you arrive.

Neurodivergent and disabled students who need reasonable adjustments should contact the Disability Advisory Service, who can assess your needs and provide you with a Student Support Plan. You do not need a formal diagnosis to begin this process. There is more information about Student Support Plans here: <https://academic.admin.ox.ac.uk/disability/student-support-plan>.

If you have a Student Support Plan (SSP), this will be shared with faculty and college disability co-ordinators, who will make it available to your Personal Tutor and, where relevant, Course Convenors. It will not automatically be shared with other tutors or lecturers unless you give explicit permission. It is a good idea to discuss your SSP with your tutors to make sure that they have read it carefully and understand what adjustments they may need to make.

Your SSP will give you extended access to lecture recordings, which are made via the lecture capture service Replay. Currently, lectures are available online to all students for two weeks. For students with an SSP, this access period is extended until the end of 0th week of the following term. The University policy on educational recordings can be found at <https://academic.admin.ox.ac.uk/educational-recordings-policy>. There are some helpful tips on how to make the best use of recorded lectures at <https://www.ox.ac.uk/students/academic/guidance/skills/recorded-lectures> and there are answer to FAQs here: <https://help.it.ox.ac.uk/replay/faq>.

Many reading lists are available electronically on SOLO or on Canvas, although there are still many books not so available. The English Faculty Library staff are also able to provide help and advice, and to make arrangements for gaining access to particular materials in the libraries. The Library staff can also assist in making special copies (large print, coloured paper, etc.).

If you need adjustments for university examinations, your college office will need to request this and provide supporting evidence by Friday of week 4 of the term in which the exam is due to take place. There is more information about types of adjustments, how to apply, and the evidence required here: <https://www.ox.ac.uk/students/academic/exams/examination-adjustments>

For more information about neurodivergent-informed teaching practices, and suggestions for adjustments and support, see also NESTL at <https://www.education.ox.ac.uk/project/neurodivergent-education-for-students-teaching-learning-nestl/>

5.2 Libraries

Oxford has excellent library provision at three levels: college, faculty and university:
<http://www.ox.ac.uk/research/libraries>

Approximately 23 libraries – not college libraries, but including the Bodleian and the Humanities Library – are part of a wider organisation called the Bodleian Libraries of the University of Oxford:
<http://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/>

i) College libraries

College libraries vary a good deal: some are extremely well stocked, while others are less well provided for. They are unlikely, wherever you are studying, to supply all the books that you will want to use, but they have certain major advantages: they are often open twenty-four hours a day, they provide a congenial working atmosphere, and you can borrow books from them for long periods. If your college library doesn't hold a particular book which is important to your work, ask your college advisor if it might be possible to order it; budgets differ, but most tutors and college librarians are receptive to useful suggestions.

ii) Humanities Library (<https://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/libraries/humanities>)

The Humanities Library, newly opened at the Schwarzman Centre in September 2025, holds approximately 110,000 books on the open shelves, and this includes a substantial collection on English language and literature which supports teaching, study and research in the English Faculty. Most books in the Humanities Library can be borrowed, but there is a minority of library-use only material, often copies of titles in heavy demand. Print collections are complemented by extensive ebook provision (see below).

There is also a considerable audiovisual collection supporting film studies, and including Shakespeare productions and literary adaptations. This collection of physical format films supplements online access to filmed performances via platforms such as Drama Online, Digital Theatre+, and Box of Broadcasts.

The library also holds a rare books collection of approximately 7,800 pre-1850 volumes, and a significant collection of 19th-century journals; these can be requested via SOLO or in some cases more restricted access via library staff. The library has a special collection relating to Old Norse-Icelandic, accommodated in the Rare Materials Teaching Room within the library.

More information about the English literature and language collections of the Humanities Library can be found here: <https://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/libraries/humanities/collections-and-resources>

If you have suggestions about books, journals or e-resources you think should be purchased for either the Humanities Library or the Bodleian Library, contact Helen Scott, the English Subject Librarian for the Bodleian Libraries (helen.scott@bodleian.ox.ac.uk).

Library staff provide induction sessions for new students, including an introduction to the Bodleian Libraries and its services, and introductory tours of both the Humanities Library and the Bodleian Library. During the year, Humanities Library staff will offer sessions looking at useful resources for particular undergraduate papers. Details of these sessions will be advertised by email.

iii) Bodleian Library (<http://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk>)

The Bodleian is a nationally and internationally renowned research library. It has been a legal deposit library since 1610, acquiring copies of everything published in the UK since then, which makes it possible to discover all kinds of writing in its collections whether well-known or obscure. Its budget doesn't stretch to buying every book published overseas, however, and it's not a lending library; all books have to be read in the reading rooms and if you're ordering books from closed stacks (i.e. the Book Storage Facility at Swindon) you need to specify which reading room you want to read them in.

To get into the Bodleian's various buildings you will need your University Card, which you should have received from your college secretary.

English literature books and journals are held in several different locations:

- on the open shelves in the upper reading room (Upper Camera) of the Radcliffe Camera (mainly critical works relating to the undergraduate syllabus and postgraduate taught courses: shelfmark SE);
- in the Upper Reading Room of the Old Bodleian (primary works, bibliographies, and bibliographical and book history journals: shelfmark A.2, etc.);
- in the Lower Gladstone Link, which houses Bodleian Library high-use Humanities material in an interdisciplinary sequence. The GL also houses an interdisciplinary collection of Humanities print journals (shelfmark PERHums);
- in Duke Humfrey's Library in the Old Bodleian and in the Weston Library Reading Rooms;
- many books and back runs of print journals are held offsite in the Bodleian Libraries Book Storage Facility (BSF) and need to be ordered in advance, so planning your work is essential.

- iv) Online catalogue (<http://solo.bodleian.ox.ac.uk>)

SOLO (Search Oxford Libraries Online: <http://solo.bodleian.ox.ac.uk>) is the library catalogue. The physical collections of the majority of libraries within the University of Oxford, including the Bodleian Libraries and most college and departmental libraries, can be found via SOLO as well as the University's collections of e-books, e-journals, articles online and databases. The SOLO page also has links to the Libraries' Databases A-Z platform which give an alternative route to many online resources (see below).

An online guide to SOLO is available here: <http://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/SOLO>

- v) Electronic resources

The Bodleian Libraries provide access to a wealth of purchased and subscription electronic resources, including over 1.4 million ebooks and over 118,000 ejournals, as well as major e-resources such as bibliographic databases and digitised collections of primary texts including digitised archives and manuscripts. Access to the Bodleian's e-resources is primarily via SOLO; signing in with your Single Sign On (SSO) will provide full access to content. Major e-resources can also be accessed via the Databases A-Z platform <https://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/az.php>

The Libraries also have access to electronic Legal Deposit (eLD) content, both book and journals. Due to the legal framework around legal deposit, access to these eLD items is restricted to Bodleian Libraries PCs. (Many eLD books and journals are duplicated in print or fully accessible electronic form.)

Please note that everyone is welcome to ask library staff for further help: you can contact Helen Scott, the English Subject Librarian (helen.scott@bodleian.ox.ac.uk) for help with resolving complex research enquiries, exploring printed and e-resources, or improving information searching skills. For more general library enquiries contact the Humanities Library on humlib@bodleian.ox.ac.uk or the Bodleian Library on reader.services@bodleian.ox.ac.uk.

There is an online guide to the Bodleian Libraries' collections and resources for English literature and language here: <https://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/english>

5.3 Computing facilities

When you study at Oxford, you need to be aware of the print and online resources available to you through the various libraries, and of useful academic information available electronically, including student handbooks, lecture lists, reading lists, information on Faculty members' research interests, and concordance programmes, for example.

- i) The Humanities Library has a number of PCs that readers can use to work on. Please note that you cannot save work on these public PCs, so any work you do should be saved to a memory stick. You will need to log in using your Bodleian Libraries username and password, which is not the same as your Single Sign On account.

For details, see: <https://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/services/library-account>

Library staff will be happy to help if you have any problems with logging on. If you wish to print from these or other Bodleian Libraries PCs, you will need to use the PCAS system which allows you to send print jobs to any of the photocopier/printing machines in any of the Bodleian Libraries.

For further details, see: <https://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/services/pcas>

- ii) You can also use the computers in your college. Most colleges have a student computer room and an IT officer who will be able to assist you with any technical questions that you might have. Some also have separate facilities for graduates. In some cases, the IT officer will be able to assist with research questions such as how to access and use SOLO. Most college libraries have terminals for consulting catalogues and other resources. Again, it is important to recognise that every college will have different policies regarding computer use and assistance.

5.4 Canvas (intranet system)

Canvas is the intranet for the Faculty; it contains information and resources for current students and staff. It includes reading lists for the various courses, the current Lecture List, Guide and Timetable, details of research seminars in the faculty, and information/papers from the Faculty's key committees. You can access the site at <https://canvas.ox.ac.uk>

You will need your Single Sign On username and password to access the system.

If you have any problems accessing the site, or any queries regarding the content, please contact the Undergraduate Studies Office (undergrad@ell.ox.ac.uk).

5.5 Language Centre

The University of Oxford Language Centre provides a wide range of general and specialised courses in foreign languages and Academic English. See <https://www.lang.ox.ac.uk/>

It specialises in the teaching of languages for practical purposes. Teaching is offered across 11 modern languages and Academic English - from intensive short courses to in-depth three-term programmes, and from daytime to evening to suit your schedule.

The library contains materials in 200 languages, including a large collection of audio material for those wishing to improve their English. It has lending books, sound recordings, videos, newspapers and online resources. It includes all the languages taught at the Language Centre, other languages, indigenous and heritage languages, less commonly taught languages, pidgins and creoles, as well as material in some endangered languages.

For further information see <http://www.lang.ox.ac.uk/>. To register, you should visit the Centre as early as possible during the first week of your course.

In addition, the Faculty of Classics offers courses specially-designed for graduates for all levels of acquisition of Latin and Greek. Students should consult the Classics Faculty lecture lists for times.

5.6 Careers Service and employment

Graduate students are advised to give early consideration to their employment prospects when they leave Oxford. The Careers Service of the University, with offices at 56 Banbury Road, can help graduate students to evaluate their prospects of finding employment, both academic and non-academic.

It is open on weekdays from 9am to 5pm. It provides a service for both undergraduates and postgraduates which you are very welcome to use, whether you are contemplating a career within or outside of the academic world. There is a well-stocked information room, and details are kept of a large number of specific job vacancies. Specialist careers advisors are available to offer personal assistance. Amongst other things, they can help you to assess your main strengths and weaknesses, and point you towards the type of job that would suit you best. You are encouraged to arrange an interview with the advisor for your subject area at least a year before the end of your course, so that you can make the most informed choice about your future career.

Their website is available at: <http://www.careers.ox.ac.uk/>

6.3 English Lecture Recording

The University Educational Recordings Policy is located here: academic.admin.ox.ac.uk/educational-recordings-policy

Please note that lecture recordings and all attendant online materials may be used only for your personal and private study, and must not be passed on to any other person (except for transcription purposes, if required due to the nature of a disability, in which case they can only be provided to the transcriber), nor reproduced or published in any form (this includes, but is not limited to, the internet and hard copy publication). Any breach of this agreement or the University's policy on the recording of lectures and other formal teaching sessions will be regarded as a disciplinary offence.

The English Faculty supports the primary function of the lecture as a live teaching and learning event, and recognizes that the presence of the lecturer and students together has clear pedagogical benefits. For this reason, lectures are (with very occasional exceptions) delivered as live, in-person events, and students are encouraged to attend in person.

For access and inclusivity, lectures will normally be recorded (unless lecturers have requested to opt out of recording for pedagogical reasons) and made available to all students for a period of two weeks, after which they will be taken offline.

An important exception to this is where students require lectures to be recorded as part of their Student Support Plan (under the Equality Act). In these cases, the recording is available to the individual student, who can view it via Canvas until the end of the following academic year. At this point all previous lectures are deleted.

Other forms of teaching, including classes, tutorials, seminars etc. will not normally be recorded.

Students are forbidden to download, share, copy, record, or otherwise re-broadcast a recorded lecture. The lecturer retains intellectual property rights.

6.3.1 EULA (End User Licencing Agreement)

6.3.1.1 About this licence

This user licence sets out the terms on which you may use a recorded lecture made available via the lecture capture service on the English Faculty Panopto pages (the service). By continuing to view lectures recorded and provided by the English Faculty, you are agreeing to this user licence and its conditions.

6.3.1.2 Permitted use

All rights in a lecture made available on or through the service are reserved. You may access recorded lectures only for the purposes of your own private study and non-commercial research, provided you acknowledge any use of the lecture in accordance with academic custom and any rules or guidance issued by the University. You must not download, broadcast or copy any lecture, or make copies or access details available to another person, or make an adaptation of a lecture, unless specifically authorised in writing or permitted under applicable intellectual property laws.

No other personal recording of lectures is permitted except by authorisation of the lecturer, or by recommendation in a Student Support Plan (SSP) from the Disability Advisory Service.

6.3.1.3 Disclaimer

The views expressed in any lecture are those of the people making them, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the University or the English Faculty. The English Faculty does not guarantee that the service, or any content on it, will always be available or be uninterrupted. Access to the service is permitted on a temporary basis. The English Faculty may suspend, withdraw, discontinue or change all or any part of the service without notice. The English Faculty will not be liable to you if for any reason the site is unavailable at any time or for any period.

If you have any questions or concerns about this licence, please contact undergrad@ell.ox.ac.uk

6.3.2 Notice of Recording

Please be aware that lectures may be recorded in audio format. These recordings may be used by the Faculty of English and accessed via Panopto by students.

At no time will audience members be intentionally recorded, but recordings will generally start and stop automatically on the hour – so conversations held next to the desk, immediately before or after a lecture, may be picked up. Audio pickup is limited by the reach of the microphone at the desk; this may include some questions from the audience.

No other personal recording of lectures is permitted except by authorisation of the lecturer, or by recommendation in a Student Support Plan (SSP) from the Disability Advisory Service.

For more information about lecture recording at the Faculty of English, please contact undergrad@ell.ox.ac.uk.

6.4 EMERGENCY INFORMATION

If the fire alarm sounds, walk immediately to the nearest fire exit. Do not run, or stop to collect possessions. Do not attempt to re-enter the building until authorised to do so by Faculty staff.

In the unlikely event of an armed incident, leave the area as quickly as possible. The key advice is to:

- RUN - to a place of safety. This is better than trying to surrender or negotiate.
- HIDE - it is better to hide than confront. Barricade yourself in, turn phones to silent and use only when it is safe to do so.
- TELL – the police by calling 999.
